"Twe seen a good many funny snaps in the way of plays and play actors in my time," said the advance agent, "but one I struck out in Milwaukee the other day was by far the best of anything I have been up against. It was in one of the museums there. The museum has a stock company in its theater, and its great specialty is border drama. Every week they give a new drama of the wild and wooly west.

"This play that I saw was a blood curdler of that character, and at the time I arrived at the theater the stage was pitch dark, and two men were fighting a duel. I could hear the knives clash together and hear the men stumble around the stage, but I could but faintly distinguish the forms of the actors. After awhile there was a thump on the floor and the villain (I knew it was the villain by his accent) hissed: 'Ah, ha! Rudolph Tegherington, I have you now and no one nigh to see me do the

What Machinery Is Doing. One of the astonishing facts in the field of industry is the marvelous power of machinery operated by hand. In the cotton trade, in 1850, the average product of every employee was something less than $700, while 30 years later he was able he could say, "I am swallowed up in to produce a value of $1,200, notin the vase in the mansion, who has a God." John Tennant kept his eye on withstanding the reduced price of cotton. In the woolen factory the change was much the same, the hand of each worker being able, as long ago as 1850, to make over $1,200 of product, and in 1880 about $1,800, the proportion of material consumed by improved machinery being about the same.

How much the world is indebted to invention cannot be stated in tangible form, but with the strength of man remaining the same and the skill of the present artisan, though showing some advances, still not dis tancing that of the ancient Egyptian, the vast increase of human resources is due mainly to the influence of invention in discovering ways in which machines can do the work of men. The competition is no longer a competition of skill of labor, but that of invention, and in America we are far in advance of any other nation in this respect. A man who 50 years ago could turn out a value equal to a scant wage, now, at fairly good wages, is able to bring into being
